This team illuminated the room with engineering of lights and moving parts. These elements communicated their creativity through the sea to the appraisers. They truly proved that many hands make light work of the group's vision. They definitely didn't clam up with the pressure! They took paper mache to a whole new level by transforming every day materials into an entire coral reef including a home-made bubble machine. Please raise a tentacle and an eye-brow to the octopi of the Annin Annihilators!!
